

COMPATIBILITY TELLER

Prince Charles's Moon in Aries and in Aswini Nakshatra
Princess Diana's Moon in Aquarius and in Dhanishtha Nakshatra

RESPECT

The flow of your relationship could occasionally bring about some mutual disrespect, but your high affinity for each other will negate most of these difficulties.

In any relationship it is respect that is most important. Love is said to, "flourish in the soil of mutual respect." When any two people get together there is a particular flow between them. If it flows well, both people feel respected, cared for and loved. If it does not flow well, both people feel disrespected, incompetent and frustrated. Men and women tend to feel loved for different things and thus need to be respected in different ways. Men feel most loved when their thoughts and actions are respected and when they are appreciated for what they do. Women feel most loved when their feelings are respected and when they are appreciated for who they are. This is not to say that a woman does not feel loved when her thoughts and actions are respected and when she is appreciated for what she does, it is only to say that she feels most loved when her feelings are respected and when she is appreciated for who she is. Men do feel loved when they are appreciated for who they are and when they have their feelings respected, but they feel most loved when they are respected for their thoughts and actions and when they are appreciated for what they do. Since men and women feel most loved when respected for different things, a healthy relationship will flow in such a way so that both people will most often be respected for what is most important to them.

Your relationship is set up so that the energy will flow from the woman to the man, which is not the ideal situation. Several difficulties can arise because of this. However, since your Wavelength score is high, your affinity for each other will smooth out the stresses.

The flow of your relationship throws the woman into the doer role more often than not. This could have the result of the woman feeling like the man does not care about the relationship as much as she does, since she is ending up being responsible for everything. Your high affinity for each other, however, should allow the woman to understand that the man does care for her and the relationship but that he does things in a more "relaxed" fashion. Since the energy is not flowing from the man to the woman, the man will not get the opportunity to do as much, which will not give the woman the opportunity to appreciate the many things he might do for her. Just when the man is starting to think of what needs to be done in the relationship, the woman is already doing it. Again, the man does not get the opportunity to do anything for the woman and the woman does not get the opportunity to feel like the man is really willing to do right by her. Your high affinity for each other, however, will help the woman to understand that the man will do right for her given time and if she does not take it upon herself.

A problem with having the energy flow from the woman to the man is that women tend to bond more in a relationship when they receive and men tend to bond more in a relationship when they invest their time, energy, money and ideas in the relationship. In this relationship, with the woman being thrown into the more active role, the woman will not be receiving as much from the man and the man will not be doing as much to be invested in the relationship. Relationships need a strong bond and with this type of dynamic the strongest bond may be the bonding that takes place sexually, and this generally bonds the woman to the man more than it bonds the man to the woman. Your high affinity for each other, however, should help you to develop a strong and well-rounded bond between each other.

Men feel nagged when being told what to do. However, with your high affinity for each other, the man will not usually feel nagged, he will understand where the woman is coming from and not take her initiatives wrongly when she asks him to do something. Women feel frustrated when doing too much for a relationship if the man is not participating as much. Your high affinity for each other, however, will help the woman understand in which way the man is participating and so she will not likely get frustrated.

Relationships all have their difficult moments. At these times of duress, it works best if the man approaches the woman to fix the problem or make amends. When a woman approaches a man to work things out or make amends she usually says something like, "I am not sure we are meant to be together." This is her saying, "let's work this out," though the feminine illiterate man does not understand what she means and replies, wishing to make her happy, something like, "maybe," "maybe not," "I am not sure," "probably not," "you are probably right," or "if that is what you want." This usually sets the woman into a rage of despair. With your high affinity for each other, however, when attempting to fix things after a difficult moment you will innately know where the other is coming from and your love will heal the difficulty.

Men are generally not able to relate to their feelings as quickly as a woman. Thus, when a woman approaches a man with some request, idea or opportunity, it takes the man twenty minutes to figure out if he would feel better taking the woman up on her offer or if he would feel better doing what he is doing. During that twenty minutes he cannot really relate well to her, he cannot give her an honest answer and so he feels uncomfortable and somewhat torn inside. The woman, seeing his discomfort, begins to feel that his discomfort is with her and then wonders if he loves her. If he does take her up immediately on her offer, then usually he is not really there for a while as his brain shifts to relationship mode slowly, and while it is doing so, the woman does not feel like he loves her since he is not there a hundred percent. Again, your high affinity and attunement for each other will help you innately understand each other and so you will be able to avoid all of these confusions.

When the woman is being thrown into the active and doer role in a relationship, the healthy development of her feminine side may be neglected and she may become drained and even ill. With your high affinity for each other, however, you will also energize each other so this becomes much less of a likelihood.

Many men have masculine issues to work out that prevent them from feeling confident and secure with their ability to do and to achieve. This can cause them to be meek. Similarly, many women have feminine issues to work out that prevent them from feeling good about themselves and this can cause them to feel like they always have to prove themselves or like they have no worth or value. With your high affinity for each other your association will allow the man to explore his masculinity and the woman will come to feel better and better about herself.

Occasionally a man really wants to be on the receptive end of a relationship and the woman really wants to be the initiator. If this is the case with you both, then this relationship will work even better for you. Sometimes a person is not sure if they want to be more on the receptive end or the doing end. A simple question can help you find what you would be happiest with. Ask yourself, "Is it more important for me to be respected for what I do and what I think, or is it more important for me to have my feelings respected and to be loved and cherished for who I am?" All of us, of course, want both, since each of us has both a masculine and feminine half to our psyche, but which is more important? If you are male and if having your feelings respected is more important, then this relationship will be perfect for you as long as the woman wants to be the doer. If you are female and if you want your actions and thoughts respected more than your feelings, then this relationship is perfect for you, as long as the man wants to be on the receptive end more of the time.

WAVELENGTH

You are on the Same Wavelength

For a relationship to be smooth, efficient and nurturing the couple has to be on the same wavelength. They must have mutual needs so that they can share in the fulfillment of those needs and they must have an innate ability to understand each other. Everything that we do in life has a subtle influence upon us. Throughout the day we crave one thing or another. Fulfilling these cravings goes a long way in helping us feel balanced and energized. When our body is craving exercise we need to get out there and move or we just won't feel okay. If we are feeling the need to be by the ocean we won't feel right until we get there. If we feel like eating a certain food, we will feel hungry until we eat that food. So it goes throughout the day. A couple that wants to spend a lot of time together has to have needs and cravings that are similar in nature and they have to have these needs at the same time. Otherwise, one or both of the individuals will not experience enough of what they need and end up not feeling right until, over time, they will become drained. If this type of attunement is not there, then the couple will also not relate and communicate well together since they really won't be tuned into the same thing at the same time.

Your Wavelength score is 20 or higher which puts you both on the same wavelength and makes you naturally attuned to each other. As a result of this natural attunement with each other you will share many similar feelings about things and will often feel like doing the very same thing, so you will be able to spend hours with each other and your presence will help energize each other. This attunement will help you form deeper bonds as you naturally identify more and more with each other. Since you are so attuned to each other you will often find that you know what the other is going to say and be able to tune into what they really mean, so you will be able to share on a much deeper level. This attunement helps you both energize each other, so spending time together in close proximity, sleeping in the same bed and such can really help you feel good.

Your Wavelength score is determined by eight different astrological measures. Each of these eight measures has something important to show you about your relationship. Continue reading to learn all about these eight factors and how they are affecting your relationship.

EXCESS

Each person's physical health as well as their actions are governed by three principles: Kapha, Pitta and Vata. Kapha correlates to the Chinese principle of Yin and to the Phlegmatic temperament. Pitta correlates to the Yang principle and the Bilious temperament. Vata correlates to the interplay or movement of Yin and Yang and the Windy temperament. These principles are very important in respect to our actions, health and feelings. Kapha provides the capacity for love, devotion, receptivity, rest, enjoyment and emotional response. Pitta provides courage, initiative, leadership, determination, intelligence, improvement and protection. Vata provides the capacity for the change and adjustment that life requires in order to live healthily and happily. If one of these temperaments becomes excessive, then the relationship, the lives of both the individuals and the physical health of the couple may become unbalanced and strained.

Each person has their own make up and blend of Kapha, Pitta and Vata, which is their "normal" state. This "normal" state may or may not be a healthy "normal." Regardless of a person's normal mental and physical state, when we relate to another person, the energy can change and there is the possibility of two people relating together to create an excess of Kapha, Pitta or Vata which results in their relationship having some imbalance. The imbalance will also carry over into the rest of their lives.

Fortunately, there are no astrological indications pointing towards any of these three energies becoming excessive or problematic between you. This will help you both come from as "real" as a place as possible. You won't be behaving radically different from your normal behavior because of the relationship emphasizing Kapha, Pitta or Vata. You may, of course, have your own imbalance or excess of Kapha, Pitta or Vata which will strain your life and any relationship you are in, but at least it is not the fault of the relationship.

In any relationship, one of the most important things is to be as much our real self as possible. Since an excess of Kapha, Pitta or Vata brought upon by the relationship can prevent us from expressing our true self and, thereby, cause us to relate with difficulty, not having an excess of Kapha, Pitta or Vata is the most important factor for having a high Wavelength score. Not having an excess of Kapha, Pitta or Vata with this person earns you eight points towards your Wavelength score and, most importantly, will help you to relate to each other in the way that you intend to and wish.

CONSTRUCTIVISM

You will naturally be creative and constructive with each other.

Astrological indications reveal that you will find it quite easy, and even automatic to be constructive with each other. You will find many things to create together and share many desires together that you hope to build into your lives. You will very often desire to do and create very similar things so that there will be many opportunities to enjoy each other as you build your lives together. Your capability to create together is one of the best things for the relationship and earns you seven points towards your Wavelength score.

TEMPERAMENT

Astrological indications reveal that, when you come right down to it, the woman has an independent, eccentric and intense temperament with many emotional depths and that the man has a kind, friendly, compassionate, open and devoted temperament. These are not compatible temperaments and so you lose up to six points that you could have otherwise earned towards your total Wavelength score. Fortunately, your total Wavelength score is twenty or greater so even with these very different temperaments you will be able to relate well together.

Women with this type of astrological lunar temperament are very temperamental and their unbridled emotions can make them go to extremes at times. Only men with the same type of astrological temperament are considered compatible. Men with other types of astrological temperaments, such as the man in question, will have a hard time appreciating this type of woman. But since you have a high Wavelength score, there will always be something for the man to appreciate and a way for you two to connect. The man may occasionally misunderstand the woman and sometimes feel threatened by her, and she will occasionally not feel accepted for who she is, though the other many good things you have going for you will more than make up for these occasional moments of misunderstanding.

FRIENDLINESS

You do not have an ill affinity toward each other.

Astrological indications reveal that you do not have any extra affinity for friendship; however, you do not have an affinity for enmity either. Compromise will be more necessary, but it shouldn't be any great problem to come to decisions that leave you both feeling happy. When things get tough, you may find yourself holding back a bit so as not to say anything that you may regret and it may be tough to work things out when they get hard, but you will be able to in the end. Since you do not have an ill affinity towards each other, you earn a half point out of a possible five towards your total Wavelength score.

INSTINCTIVE COMPATIBILITY

Each person has an instinctive nature that they rely upon in intense situations when all recourse has left them. This instinctive nature is usually resorted to in crisis situations and in situations when a person has to do something, but does not know what to do. The instinctive nature also comes out to a lesser degree during the more intense aspects of sex. For a couple to go through intense situations harmoniously together and for a couple to bond through intense experiences and sexual experiences, it is important that their instinctive natures be compatible.

Astrological indications reveal that your instinctive natures are not harmoniously disposed towards each other, nor are they disruptive towards each other. This is quite acceptable and, since your instinctive natures do not disrupt each other, you earn one out of a possible four points towards your total Wavelength score.

COMFORT

A man's temperament will either feel comfortable and safe to a woman, or it will feel more threatening. If the man's temperament feels safe and comfortable, then the woman will, of course, feel better about the relationship, and she will also be better able to get over any issues that may be making having a good relationship difficult for her. It will help her grow emotionally. The man will also benefit as he will feel like he is doing the right things in the relationship which will help him feel good about himself and, by extension, the relationship. If, on the other hand, the man's temperament feels more threatening, the woman will only have a more difficult time feeling secure in the relationship and the efforts that the man might make to move the relationship forward, or to improve the relationship, may actually cause a setback in the relationship. If that is the case, the man may become frustrated and unhappy with himself and, by extension, the relationship.

Astrological indications reveal that the man's general temperament is non-threatening to the woman and so you gain three points towards your total Wavelength score. This will help both of you feel good about the relationship - the woman will feel good because more of the man's actions (if indeed he takes any actions) will feel right by her and the man will feel good because he is doing right by the woman. In times of difficulty, there is a greater possibility of working things out, what the man will do to fix the problem (if he attempts to fix the problem) will more often than not be what will fix the problem.

This is quite a minor comparison by itself, and by itself it will not have a major say in the relationship, it is only important in the context of gaining a high enough Wavelength score as to have a good relationship.

INNATE GIVING

The man has an innate ability to know what the woman needs.

When you are together there will be an innate ability for the man to know what the woman needs and he will be happy to provide it. The woman, in turn, will fall deeper in love with the man as a result of his devotion to her. This can really help you feel like you care for each other and so earns you one point towards your Wavelength score.

MUTATION

This relationship will incline you to make positive changes.

People change as a result of being in a relationship. Each person mutates somewhat as a result of being with the other. Ideally, this change is for the better and since it is part of human nature to want to change and improve, if the relationship has an innate ability to bring about positive changes, the couple's need for growing and improving will be better met.

Astrological indications reveal that your relationship is more likely to help you both change towards the positive instead of the negative. This will make the relationship more fulfilling and so you gain one points towards your Wavelength score.

INNATE SENSE OF PURPOSE

Even though you have a very high Wavelength score, astrological indications reveal that you do not necessarily have an innate sense of purpose together. So, you will be wise to make sure that your reasons for being together are solid reasons. If your reasons for being together are superficial, then you may well find yourself one day wondering why you are together.

OBSTACLES

Obstacles can be overcome so that you can be together.

In any relationship so much has to happen for two people to completely be together. Many of these things are practical things, like living in the same place, both being free and unattached, having work schedules that allow the necessary time for being together and having enough money to feel secure about building a life together. Then there is always the matter of being in the same mood and frame of mind so that they can enjoy sharing their lives with each other. Getting all of these things to fall into place can be quite a chore at times and there is plenty of opportunity for setbacks and obstacles to being together. For some couples, their destinies are timed so completely differently that there will always be something, or some feeling, preventing them from fully being together. Their destinies pull them apart and simply living their very lives becomes a source of obstacles to being together. When one lives in California, the other lives in Florida, when the Californian moves to Florida, the Floridian moves to New York to take care of their mother...and so the relationship goes or, rather, does not go. Fortunately, you escape this and the timing of your destinies is not an impossible conflict. So long as other compatibility factors are okay, you will be able to sort out your lives and make any changes and adjustments necessary in order to be together.

MISFORTUNE

Your association does not bring any extra misfortune into your lives.

Besides the obvious importance to love and to be loved in a relationship, it is important for every couple to share a productive and happy life together. In fact, being in love increases our desire to live a productive and fortunate life. Some people get together and find their lives getting better and find more and more meaning to be with each other. Others, on the other hand, get together only to have everything go completely wrong, not just wrong in their lives, but wrong between them as well. Their very togetherness brings ill feelings between them along with misfortune. It is as if they are tied to a string of unfortunate events. Fortunately, one astrological measurement will show whether a couple is tied to the type of misfortune that has no end and no cure or if their association does not breed any extra ill into their lives.

Astrological indications reveal that your relationship does not suffer from any such type of unfortunate attachments. Due to your own inherent destinies and personalities you may still find yourselves attracting unfortunate events, in which case you will need to take a close look at yourselves as individuals so that you can see what issues you are holding onto that are attracting the ill events. You may also find yourselves playing games with each other or putting walls up between each other. If that is the case, it points to issues that you need to work out and not issues that are the result of your association with each other.

MAGNETIC ATTRACTION

The man is magnetically drawn towards the woman, but this could be a fatal attraction.

Astrological indications reveal that the man is particularly drawn towards the woman. This will cause the man to bond more strongly to the woman and have a great desire for her. Normally this would be great for a relationship, but since your compatibility is indicating some potential problem areas, this attraction can cause a lot of pain to the man if you are not able to work out the problems and have a good relationship. The man will have to be careful that he is not killing himself for this relationship; it could be a fatal attraction. Do what is reasonably good to do to work out your problems, but if you can't, don't let this attraction keep you in a place that is not healthy. If the relationship fails, this attraction can also cause it to be much harder to move on. You will want to realize that, if the relationship did fail, that it failed for a reason - this person is not "the One," though this extra attraction can make it feel like the person is "the One."

ASSERTIVE PRESSURE

While the Moon represents a person's nature and consciousness, Mars is the planet through which we assert what is in our mind and heart. For two people to have a harmonious relationship, not only must they have an innate attunement towards each other, they must also assert themselves equally, or else the relationship will become imbalanced and frustrated. The position of Mars in your horoscope, and not just in one of your Vedic charts but in three important charts, determines how much force you assert yourself with in your relationship. If both of you assert yourselves with relatively equal force, you will be able to work together to have a balanced and healthy relationship. If one of you asserts yourself more than the other, then the relationship will become imbalanced.

Your horoscopes shows that the woman asserts herself with more force than the man. This can result in the man feeling pushed and nagged while also making it difficult for him to say what he wants in the face of the woman's stronger presence. The woman may often feel like she has to do everything and that the man is just not doing what he needs to be doing, that he is really not into making things happen in the way that she is. When the woman says "no" to something the man may have suggested, her "no" may sound so loud in the man's ears that he loses his courage and focus.

The fact that you two do not have a favorable Respect measurement amplifies all of these potential problems and you may find it nearly impossible for the man to be strong enough and for the woman to be patient enough for this relationship to work harmoniously.

CONCLUSION

Relationships are rarely easy as we all bring our challenging personalities into our relationships. When it comes down to it, the right relationship is the relationship that we feel right about being in the way that it is. A relationship in which we love a person but hope for things to be different and to change, cannot really be termed the right relationship. It is natural for each of us to have our hopes and wishes and no relationship will fulfill them all, but if we can accept the relationship for the hopes that it does fulfill then we are on the right track to the right relationship. Further, if the hopes that the relationship does not fulfill do not become a source of damage to the relationship or do not cause us to be cruel to our partner, then it is the right relationship.

The Vedic compatibility focuses on this right type of relationship. The considerations it makes are those that determine if people can have this type of foundation together. If the five important measurements are all good, then the foundation for this type of relationship is there. The five important measurements are Respect, Wavelength, Obstacles, Misfortune and Assertive Pressure. Any measurement amongst these that is inharmonious will be a source of stress, difficulty and lack between you two. But that is not to say that it is the wrong relationship, if that is the price you are willing to pay in order to have that person in your life and if you are willing to make the payment with the extra work, then it may well be the right relationship for you. However, it is usually seen that any of these five being insufficient create stresses that are more than the average person wants to pay for their relationship.

Since one or more of these five measurements is inharmonious, this relationship may tend to support each person's bad habits and issues and make it harder to find happiness with each other as well as with yourselves. The most difficult measurements to lack are the Obstacles and Misfortune. These usually become apparent early on in the relationship. Misfortunes are particularly painful and create huge ups and downs. Lack of Respect and imbalanced Assertive Pressure become more and more apparent after six months and can become very frustrating for both people. Poor Wavelength is the least immediately painful of inharmonious and can take years to take its toll until it makes people drift apart or feel drained. So if this relationship is lacking any of these five measurements, you will want to take a good look at your relationship and see what you are really willing to do in order to have it, it will certainly take more work and effort or a bit of extra compromise.